

Scholarships for the German-Arab Master's Course
„International Education Management (INEMA)“
University of Education Ludwigsburg / Helwan University, Cairo
Start: July 2013

What are the goals of the programme?

This master's course is designed with an interdisciplinary and integrative approach that is aimed at conveying general capabilities and knowledge in education management. The international dimension of the educational sector (i.e. national and international systems and theories of education) is dealt with together with socio-cultural aspects. The sector-comprehensive education is made possible by in-depth offers for single sub-sectors (i.e. school education, university and research, professional further training). In content and methodology this programme offers young experts of the education sector a practice and demand oriented continued training opportunity attaching special emphasis on the acquisition of inter-cultural communicative capabilities. The participants acquire such capabilities in intercultural communication and management that enable the graduates to join international development or scientific-technological cooperation projects. English is the language of instruction. Upon successful completion of the course master's degrees of both participating universities are awarded.

Because of the special target group and the practice orientation the course is offered parallel to the job and in blended learning format.

Who can apply?

Applications are open to participants from the following countries: Germany, Algeria, Egypt, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon, Morocco, Palestinian Territories, Syria, Tunisia, and Yemen.
